REMOVING HER SKIN

(From the Feminine World.)

The quickest and surest way to make a good complexion out of a bad one is to actually remove the thin veil of faded or discolored outer skin from the face. This can be done easily, safely and privately by any woman.

The process is one of gentle absorption. Get an ounce of pure mercurized wax from your druggist and apply it at night like cold cream, washing it off in the morning. In a few days the mercurized wax will have absorbed the discolored skin, revealing the fresh young skin underneath; you will have a beautiful, clear, natural complexion. The process is pleasant and harmless, making the face look brilliantly attractive and youthful. It also effectually removes such blemishes as freckles, tan, moth patches, liver spots, pimples, etc. Every woman should keep a little mercurized wax on hand as this simple, old-fashioned remedy is the best complexion beautifier and preserver known.

CASCARETS CLEANSE LIVER AND BOWELS

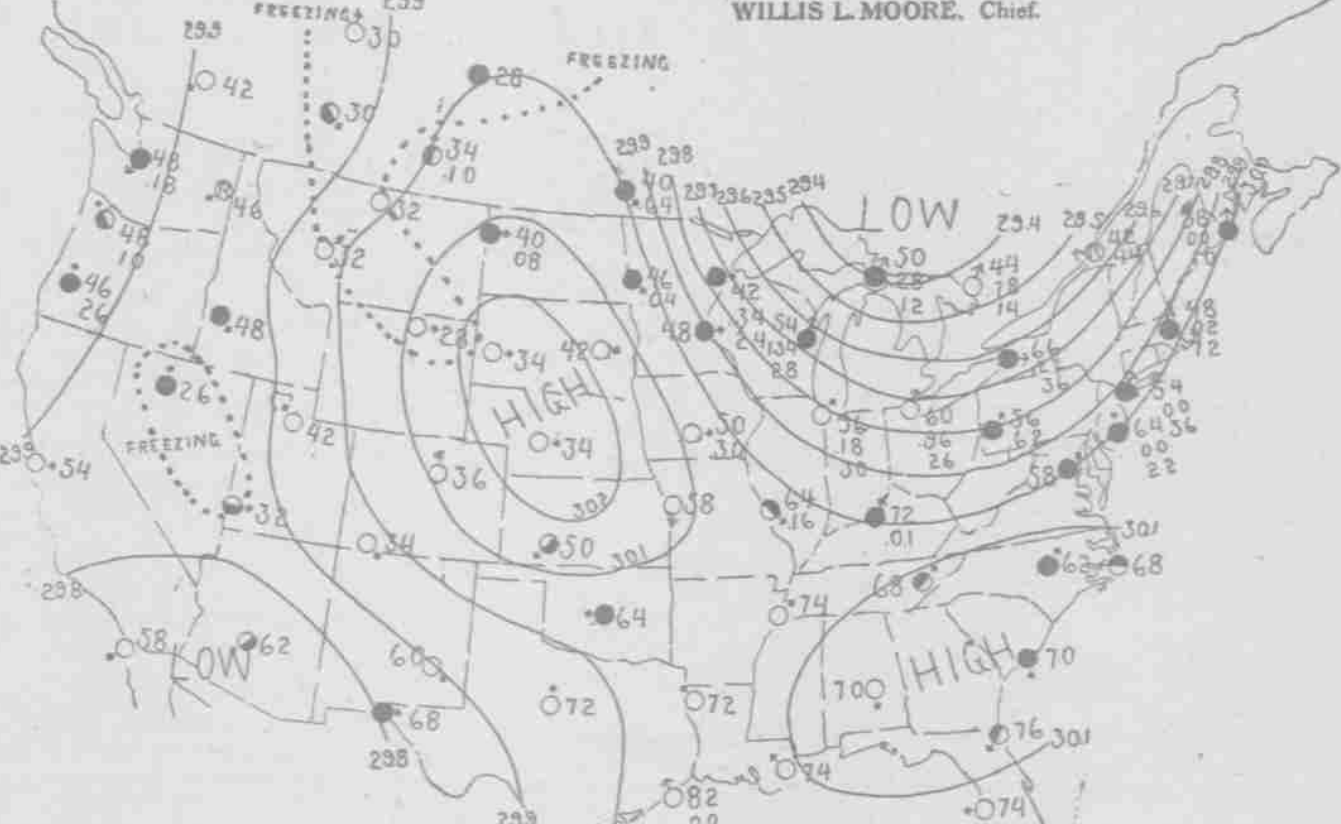

No Biliousness, Headache, Sick, Sour Stomach, Indigestion, Costed Tongue or Constipation.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to unfold misery--indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give you a thorough cleansing inside and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep--a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you in good health for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children--their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

"Westward the Star of Empire Takes His Way"

By R. BEDICHEK, DEMING, N. M.

One hundred and forty years ago, Adam Smith, the great economist, boasted North America, as follows: "In our North American colonies, where uncultivated land is still to be had upon easy terms, no manufactures for distant sale have ever yet been established in any of their towns. When an artificer has acquired a little more stock than is necessary for carrying on his business and supplying the neighborhood of any community, he is the one who, as a rule, got in on the ground floor. It is not secret, this thing of acquiring property. He who runs may read. Where there is one man who got rich by means of a successful invention, building a railroad, establishing a manufacturing plant, there are hundreds who got their money, or rather their start, by the rise in the price of land."

It is conceded to be a fact by all that the opportunities for making money dwindle in proportion to the advancement of any section of country. At the time that Adam Smith wrote the above quoted passage, opportunities for making money were scarce in England, but they were plentiful in New England, Virginia, Georgia. A hundred years ago many of the opportunities had been monopolized in the Atlantic States, but there was an abundance of cheap lands just west of the Alleghenies. Westward swept the vast ever widening flood of immigration, leaving in its wake developed farms, towering cities, vast public improvements, and families established in wealth and independence.

Somewhat out of the regular course of immigration and, therefore, and for other reasons appearing later, long overlooked by the prospector, lies the fertile valley of the Mimbres in southern New Mexico. Nestled among the mountains, barren looking and uninviting to the husbandman, this valley was overlooked while hundreds of thousands of homesteaders swept on to California and the coast in search of cheap and productive lands. Furthermore, the wonderful water supply of this valley remained undiscovered until a very few years ago. It was known that vast floods came down the Mimbres out of the mountains only to disappear mysteriously and as if by magic; but what became of all this water was a matter of conjecture until a comparatively short time ago. Some thought that these waters were conducted by a narrow underground channel, and perhaps through fissures in the mountains to the south, into the Rio Grande river. Others thought that they reappeared in some arid district far into old Mexico. And so on.

The Conduct of Water. The truth of the matter turned out to be that unless the entire valley were thick strata of sand and gravel which acted at once as a reservoir and as a channel for conducting the water slowly, very slowly to the southeast. Thirty percent of the sand and gravel strata is solid and filled with water, hence in every three feet there is something like 20 feet of sand

The Diagraphoscope

The Most Marvelous Invention of This Age--A Wonder

Working Machine Which Will Revolutionize the

Medical World and Cure Most Diseases

Office, 3rd Floor Herald Building, Will Open to the Public Tuesday, October 10th

One of the oldest and most potent forces of today is electricity. Edison stated a few years ago if electricity, voltage and amperage could be controlled and directed it would revolutionize the medical world and cure all diseases. That we have arrived at this control today and have taken from electricity its quiescence in the shape of osoma, the above named machine amply testifies. It is the eighth wonder of the world, supplying a force that is doing more for diseases since its recent successful development than an ocean of drugs a forest of surgeons' knives. The Osoma Co., in the Herald building, is the only firm in the country having a wonder working machine of this order. The diagraphoscope, besides its enormous initial cost, is a machine so complicated, so delicate in its mechanism, that only the highest type of skilled and trained physicians are able to utilize its marvelous powers. It gives a diagnosis that is absolutely true--not guesswork. This is accomplished by showing to the naked eye every organ in the patient's body. By means of this phenomenal machine's power, one can see the heart in action, the rise and fall of the diaphragm, a spoonful of bile passing down the throat. Any constriction is as visible as the light of day, as are kidney stones, or, in fact, any abnormal condition. It will show gall stones, as often believed to be cirrhosis of the liver.

You can see right past the appendix, often observing the kidney stones, so often mistaken for appendicitis. No other specialist, no other apparatus in the country can offer a diagnosis such as this. The screen used in the diagraphoscope is placed on the chest or other portion of the body, and every interior condition or happening is immediately visible to the naked eye.

The screen is composed of a wonderful compound which costs in the rough just five times its weight in gold. The rays which thus illuminate the human body are so powerful that they will pierce almost three feet of solid wood and reveal a copper cent on the opposite side. Yet their action is not in the slightest degree felt. The diagraphoscope not only reveals a hidden bullet, be it on the right or left side, but just how far it has penetrated. Any enlargement of the joints are immediately revealed and taking it all in all makes the formerly much coveted X-ray look like a toy. Remember that the only place in the United States this marvel of the twentieth century is in operation in the Herald building, room 303.

The long course of arduous study required for even a partial knowledge of the operation of this triumph of the world's greatest minds, as well as its enormous initial cost, places it far beyond the reach of the regular specialist.

and gravel strata, or about 19 feet of solid water. Thus the sand and gravel strata on the character of a vast underground reservoir which is constantly kept supplied by the rains falling on over 1000 square miles of rough and precipitous mountain drainage to the north.

Then it became known a few years ago that this tremendous supply of water was under the entire valley at depths varying from 10 to 100 feet, and after one or two acres of the country had been installed, the discerning prospector saw the possibilities, and gradually the valley became settled. Two hundred pumps of water have been installed in this valley within the past 18 months, representing the investment of something like $400,000. The land is as yet barely touched. Vast undeveloped areas lie awaiting the hand of the husbandman. Values are still low. Ten dollars an acre buys the relinquishment to splendid lands. $75 per acre buys land adjoining the town-site of Deming.

Californiaans Going to Deming. The flood of immigration which struck the Pacific coast several years ago is now doubling back. Twenty or 30 Californiaans have been prospecting in the Mimbres valley within the last few months. Some of Californiaans have bought land here within the past year. Prospectors from Washington, Wyoming and Oregon are almost as common as prospectors from Ohio and Indiana. It is now catching the home-seeker from all points of the compass. Land values are consequently rising faster here than in any other portion of the southwest, while the percentage of increase of land values is far and away the greatest that has been known in New Mexico.
